

Every Election Day, thousands of Ohioans contribute to their communities by helping to operate polling places. Ohio's election workers help safeguard our election process. Many election workers find their experience rewarding and return to serve year after year.

If you choose to work at a poll, you will receive training and be paid for your time.

Guidelines for election workers are:

1. Must be registered to vote in Allen County and must vote their politics in order to remain in their respective positions.
2. Must attend a "School of Instruction" before serving.
3. Must not miss or have missed voting in more than 1 partisan primary election.

If you are interested in becoming an election worker, complete the form below or contact the board of elections for more information.
